THE ROLE OF THE EXECUTOR

What is an executor?

An Executor is a person appointed in a Will who is responsible for administering an Estate. The first order of business upon a death is to determine the identity of the Executor. This information can be found by reviewing the Last Will and Testament of the deceased.

Responsibilities:

It is wise to seek the advice of a lawyer at the outset. It is not always necessary to retain a lawyer, but certainly initial advice should be sought. In general, the Executor is responsible for all aspects of the administration of the Estate. This includes gathering in the assets of the deceased and distributing them in accordance with the instructions contained in the Will. Although this may seem an overwhelming process, it is not difficult provided that the Executor is well organized, maintains 'to-do' lists and keeps careful records.

Because the Executor is responsible for preparing a statement of original assets as of the date of death, detailing the nature of the assets, a description of each and its value at that date, careful records must be kept.

It is also the Executor's obligation to determine the debts and other liabilities of the deceased and to include them in the original Estate inventory. Depending on the circumstances of the estate, the Executor may elect at an early stage to advertize for creditors or may elect to advertize at a later point in time.

The Executor is required to determine if a will needs to be proven in a court process ("probate") and is responsible for taking the necessary steps to ensure that the Will is probated, if necessary. Probating is a process whereby the Will is presented to the Court by way of an 'Application for a Certificate of Appointment of an Estate Trustee with a Will'. The result is a Court Order formally recognizing the Executor as such, and confirming that the Will presented is the Last Will and Testament of the Deceased. Probate is required in most Estates which are not considered to be small in total value of assets.

The Executor is responsible for maintaining the Estate accounts. The process used to maintain the Estate accounts is not specified by the law. A paper bookkeeping system can be used and perhaps should be used for an uncomplicated Estate. A complicated Estate probably demands the use of a computer program. In many Estates, it is entirely possible for the Executor to maintain the accounts themselves. If the Estate is large and/or contains numerous assets, consulting an accounting professional is strongly recommended.

An accounting professional will also assist in obtaining a Clearance Certificate from Revenue Canada, which is another Executor's obligation. In the absence of a Certificate, the Executor may incur personal liability with respect to taxes owed by the deceased or the Estate.
